At beginning of Oslo peace process, Palestinians were allowed control over some areas in WB. Area A: 3% of WB (Pal control) B: 36% of WB (“joint” control) and C: 60% of WB Israel control.

Toward the late 1990s, Area A grew to 17%, Area B shrank to 23%, with total remaining the same: 40% of WB.
“Palestinian controlled” areas (dark gray) under Oslo and Israel’s Settlements today

During Oslo (1993 onward) number of Israeli settlers almost doubled in WB & G, and 50,000 added in EJ: Total Israeli settlers today living outside of 1967 border: 420,000.

Not including Israelis living in annexed Jerusalem. Population figures vary (sometimes by as much as 20%) depending on the source. Numbers should be considered conservative approximations.
During Oslo, Israel added 450 Km of “Jews Only” highways inside WB.
Barak’s (and Clinton’s) “Generous Offer” at Camp David II, July 2000: ~80% (of 22% of Palestine) for the new Palestinian “state”. Israel would control its borders, skies and underground water resources; would maintain 80% of settlers and “Jews Only” highway grid that slices the WB N-S & E-W. For rejecting this the Palestinians were described as: “Not ready for peace”.

150 Israeli checkpoints dot the WB, G &EJ hindering free Palestinian movement.
