Columbus Day is a national holiday in the United States, going back to the day in October 1492 when Columbus is said to have “discovered America.” Exactly what do we celebrate on Columbus Day?

Come listen to three speakers – a Mashpee Wampanoag, a New Afrikan, and a Palestinian – in a panel discussion of the history of the European settler in Turtle Island (present-day North America), Africa, and Palestine.

“America” 1838–1839 Trail of Tears. Expulsion of native peoples from southeast U.S.

Africa, 19th century European slave trade

Palestine 1948, “Expulsion From Ramle”
